

Our data protection statement

We do not need to keep records on you – so we don't!

The only records we do keep, either on paper or electronically, are a simple address list of supporters.

This includes the e:mail addresses of people who contact us by e:mail, or who give us their e:mail address so that we can keep in touch.

From time to time, we may send you a letter or e:mails to tell you about the activities of the Association or other relevant news.

Your contact details and e:mail address are never passed onto any other organisation.

We try to ensure that general e:mails sent out to you and others do not reveal your e:mail address to others.

If you do not want to receive any information from us, or we are accidentally spamming you, please get in touch and we will take you off our contact list.

If you are concerned that you think we may be abusing the information we have about you, or are fed up with spam mail you get from us, you can make a complaint to the Information Commissioner at <http://www.ico.gov.uk/complaints.aspx>
